The Final Funday Monday of Give Methow!!!!

The last Funday Monday is here! Any donation made today will enter you into a drawing to win the chance to donate $1000 more to the cause of your choice!

This year at MBP we are raising money to support 2024 Summer Interns who will help us restore our degraded streams through beaver mimicry and the reestablishment of native beavers across our watersheds!

This week we are featuring one of our 2023 Summer Interns, McKenna.

McKenna

McKenna is an Environmental Science, GIS, and Climate Leadership student from Western Washington University. Here's her reflection on her summer internship with MBP:

" Although I've always known my path will follow conservation and restoration, working with the Methow Beaver Project was an incredible way to remind me of the complex ways one organism can affect others within an ecosystem. My end goal is to become a Fisheries Biologist and I have been so focused on that conservation style for so long; it was such an eye-opening experience to learn about the relationship between beavers and fish, and a reminder of all the other connections that surround us. I had so many fun days working with the team! My favorite memory, though, was on my very last day. We finished up pounding posts for the day, and we all thought it would be funny for me to plank on our last BDA. We were all laughing so hard, with Joe trying to explain to me how to plank, which I of course teased him for. We got the perfect photo, and I used it in my final presentation the next day! The circular bruises on my belly were worth the laughs I got with everyone that day. "
